

David Hugo was born and raised in New York City to a musical family. His mother Laura was a radio soloist and his grandfather was singer and instrumentalist, Luke Barrett, who played with the famed Henry Jerome Orchestra. David was drawn to the arts at a very early age, operating and performing at his very own neighborhood theater.

David is a musical theater graduate of the prestigious Dillard School of Arts. At age 18 he started a group, David Hugo and Special Way, and were featured musical guests at many churches and concerts. Subsequently, David was introduced to the Trinity Broadcasting Network and became a frequent musical guest on their television programs. David began writing songs and making records. His songs of faith and inspiration have competed in numerous national events including the Dove Awards and the John Lennon International Songwriting Competition.

David has performed in major theatrical productions including leading roles in Showtime Productions, "Keep On Dancing." Over the years, David has reached audiences both here and abroad with his warm rich baritone vocals. His concerts include an array of selections from gospel to Broadway, to love song ballads.

David's legacy has long been to inspire the listener through his music, whether performing at churches, festivals, concert halls or prisons. Now Celebrating his 40th Anniversary in music, David's latest recordings such as "The Great I Am" and "Sing Jerusalem!" are critically acclaimed and represent a beautiful collaboration with music producer Omar Leslie. David's early recordings as well as his latest releases continue to reach audiences world-wide, both young and old.
